FALL ROOFING TIPS

The beginning of football, children returning to school and the advent of cooler temperatures are all signs that Fall is here. With the recent Santa Ana winds wreaking havoc, it is extremely important to make sure your roofs are ready to stand up to whatever winter should bring.

We recommend that your roof be inspected for signs of fatigue. It is important to check for splits and cracks at transition points and projections (i.e. stacks, vents, expansion joints, walls and perimeters). These take the brunt of the building movement as the temperature rises and falls. It is equally as important to check for dirt and debris that may have collected on the roof at drains, scuppers and gutters, especially after the autumn leaves have fallen.

Blocked drainage is a major cause of roof leaks when the rains arrive. Now is the time to look over the metal flashings and check skylights to make sure they are not cracked or broken.

At Western States Roof Systems, Inc., we believe that regular roof maintenance is the best possible way to maximize the life expectancy of your roofing system.
